St. John's Honors Marlene Young With President's Medal

Dr. Thomas H. Powell, President of Saint John's Catholic Prep High School (SJCP) named Marlene Young as a recipient of the 2020 Presidential Medal in a private ceremony at the Delaplaine Arts Center on Friday, November 13, 2020.

"Honoring Marlene is long overdue for her outstanding work in our community," said Powell during his remarks at the event. "When I think of Marlene,

I am reminded of a quote by one of my heroes, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, 'Example is not the main thing in life...it is the only thing in life.' Marlene Young is an inspirational example for our students and our entire community. She has made a significant difference in so many lives, and her leadership has improved our community and our Nation. May we all be inspired by her commitment to serve and tonight we celebrate all that she has accomplished."

MHA Expansion Responds to Increased Local Need

Emergency reappropriations of facilities and staffing within hospitals in response to COVID-19 continue to occur on a daily basis nationwide. Less capable of adaptation are smaller community mental health organizations, which nonetheless, are receiving unprecedented requests for client services.

This has been the case for Mental Health Association of Frederick County (MHA), which has seen a staggering increase in requests. However, according to Shannon Aleshire, CEO, MHA, a combination of unexpected circumstances has allowed the organization to grow in facilities, staff, and technology to help meet local demand.

Aleshire explains that County Executive Jan Gardner and Dr. Barbara Brookmyer of Frederick County Health Department realized the increasing need for behavioral health services early on. Discussions about expanding the size of the MHA physical plant utilizing national COVID-19 funding began with Andrea Walker, Director of Behavioral Health Services Division at the Health Department. "This was great news but the money was available with the understanding that construction be complete December 30, 2020, an extremely escalated schedule given the project." Aleshire says the project included the completion of the building's unfinished second floor, which now quarters its child and family programming, as well as staff offices. "This allows our first floor to be dedicated to public interactions, and provides for seven additional clinical behavior health offices, and two other larger suites for family meetings." In total, Aleshire says that MHA facilities have grown by 20% with the expansion.

Prior to the availability of the new meeting spaces, MHA staff had the benefit of updated technologies, which allowed them to better serve MHA clients remotely—underwritten by Delaplaine Foundation and the COVID-19 Collaborative. "Our tech was woefully outdated. Having new technology on a HIPPA-compliant platform allowed our staff to work with clients who preferred or needed tele-med. The funding also provided for PPE, which was important because some clients prefer to walk in and see a counselor one-on-one. The Collaborative insured our continuum of services." Aleshire says the local grants were especially important because they were awarded before federal funds were released.

MHA Services

MHA offers 12 active programs. Requests for services have increased significantly as is seen in these two examples.

24 Hour Call Center—Information and referral, crisis intervention and suicide prevention. Serves as an entry point for services. MHA is the Western MD regional center for all 211 calls.
FY 2019 36,340 / FY 2020 40,910 +13%

Walk-in Behavioral Health—Free, immediate, face-to-face support for anyone experiencing a non-life-threatening emotional, mental, family or relationship crisis.
FY 2019 579 / FY 2020 705 +22%

Referral Services—MHA's counselors assist clients in their needs for related services, working with 900 local and state agencies.

Spanning a number of years, Delaplaine Foundation has awarded $170,000 in grant dollars to Mental Health Association of Frederick County for crisis programs and family services programs.

Aleshire and her staff of 80 employees and 120 volunteers first became aware of the COVID-19's impact following the March shutdown. "Call volumes went sky high and remained so throughout the spring. From July-September we were operating at an 18% increase and continue to do so."

When asked what MHA most needs now, Aleshire says jokingly, "Rest. We are a 24-7 operation and it requires a lot of people power. Funding is the key. We invest in our staff. We are a people business."

"Prior to COVID-19, we knew that we needed to expand, but we couldn't afford it." Aleshire looks at the expansion initiative and funding as a once in a lifetime silver lining. "This has been a huge undertaking. However, the expanded meeting space and new technologies allow us to better respond to Frederick County and regional citizens who are in need of our services."

SPOTLIGHT

The Buddy Project Supports Disabled Community

How many people do you know who have started a nonprofit organization at the age of 19? Meet Eric D. Zimmerman, Founder and Technical Director of The Buddy Project, a Frederick-based NPO that provides technology, training, and advocacy for the intellectually and developmentally disabled.

Zimmerman, who has autism, was trained as an IT technician while a teen at the Frederick County Career and Technology Center. Upon graduation he interned and was later employed by Best Buddies in 2006, a national NPO that mentors young people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. While there, he realized that many of the NPO's clients didn't have the means of owning a computer—thereby limiting their advancement.

This led to his creation of The Buddy Project in 2007, which gives away refurbished computers to the disabled. Another of Zimmerman's small business entities distributes computers to low income individuals. The two entities give away 600-700 computers annually.

In 2020, The Buddy Project was the recipient of a $4,500 grant from Delaplaine Foundation, which assisted the organization during the height of the pandemic. "The Delaplaine funds made it possible for The Buddy Project to continue on. We are very thankful for this," said Zimmerman. For more information, visit: www.thebuddyproject.org

the health crisis, I'm reminded of my grandfather who brought aid to those in need during the severe blizzard of 1895. Although his selfless efforts resulted in him contracting pneumonia that led to his death at age 35, his actions for others in their time of need is a guiding philosophy and example for all of us and to present and future generations alike," Delaplaine said.

Among the grants awarded during the 2020 grant cycle included an $80,000 grant to The AARCH (African-American Resources Cultural and Heritage Society) of Frederick. Delaplaine Foundation was pleased to make this award as part of its focus on historic preservation. AARCH President David Key stated "The AARCH Society of Frederick is very excited and grateful for the generous grant provided by Delaplaine Foundation. It is truly an honor to serve as president of AARCH and to be a small part of bringing Mr. William O. Lee's dream of an African American Heritage Center to a reality. What a tribute to his vision and dedication to the community."

Young said that 14% of distributed grant dollars went to nonprofits outside of Frederick County. "In some cases, the programs and services funded to organizations outside of Frederick County provide a direct benefit to Frederick County citizens."

Two examples she cited included grants awarded to Maryland Academy of Science/Maryland Science Center, and the National Aquarium—both located in Baltimore. "Delaplaine Foundation grant dollars will provide for free admission for Frederick County students and their teachers to experience these educational facilities."

Delaplaine Foundation Awards Over $2.5m to Nonprofits in 2020

AARCH Society, recipient of an $80,000 grant for its new African-American Heritage Center, was one of more than 200 organizations to receive funding from Delaplaine Foundation in 2020. AARCH Society President David Key is seen with Marlene Young and George Delaplaine, Jr.

The year 2020 led to new funding heights at Delaplaine Foundation, Inc. according to Foundation President Marlene B. Young. "Between emergency relief grants that we were compelled to make in response to the local impact of COVID-19 in addition to grants made during our annual grant cycle, we awarded a record 215 grants totaling $2,534,000."

Young said that 86% of the total grant dollars remained within Frederick County. "Our emergency relief grants enabled us to remind area individuals and families in need that they were not alone in the health crisis. By joining forces and resources with other local philanthropic funders in shared purpose, we could help transform problems into opportunities to bring hope in times of great need."

George B. Delaplaine, Jr., Chairman of Delaplaine Foundation stated "In reflection on our Foundation's grantmaking, especially in this year of

FROM THE PRESIDENT

A new year has dawned marking a milestone for us here at Delaplaine Foundation. 2021 is our 20th year of serving our mission of impactful philanthropy for a greater good by supporting programs and services that enrich communities, families, individuals and quality of life for all. Spanning the past two decades, we've had widespread opportunity to meet, partner with, and support incredibly dedicated nonprofit organizations whose missions closely align with ours. What a privilege to walk alongside the community through some challenging terrain at times, especially within the past year.

The genesis of Delaplaine Foundation comes from the March 2001 sale of the family's major newspaper and cable television / telecommunications businesses. The Delaplaine family chose to take a portion of the proceeds to establish Delaplaine Foundation, Inc. The businesses, under the leadership of George B. Delaplaine, Jr. had a long history of being good corporate citizens, giving back to the community. The Foundation's creation was also born out of an intent to perpetuate that giving and to operate in perpetuity.

Now entering our 20th year, we pledge to re-examine our stewardship, devoted to the six core areas of our focus (arts, education, health, human services, historic preservation and spiritual enlightenment). As we acknowledge the best of our past, we recommit to working with community partners to advance positive and transformative change in addressing the diverse, ever evolving needs around us while holding fast to our passion for preserving time honored history. With focused discernment we've awarded $20,215,000 in grants since our inception, with an average of 75% of those grant dollars supporting Frederick County, here where our roots are deep. We welcome the new year and recommit to building on the Foundation's vibrant story—a story that belongs to all of us.
